

I work in the industry to help FM translator people find new channels when they are displaced by circumstances beyond their control. Usually, the FM translator is displaced by a new, higher power FM station being placed on-air.

Therefore, I support the National Translator Association's petition for FM translator rules change.

In addition, I would state that the current displacement rules that are applicable in the low power TV area have worked well and I submit that having the FM translator rules follow in the same way would make the FCC's regulations more consistent.
